Kidnapped woman found

A 25-year-old Detroit woman who is severely retarded and epileptic was found apparently unharmed Wednesday night after being kidnapped when a man stole the car she was in on the city's west side, police said.

Joyleen Pruitt

Mary Pruitt, 53, of Detroit, had locked her daughter Joyleen inside her car in the parking lot of Medics-Pharmacy at 18211 Joy

Road about 2 p.m. when she went to buy medicine for her daughter, police said.

A man, described as black with light complexion, about 30, 6 feet 3, with short hair and wearing a tan rawhide jacket, apparently coaxed the daughter into opening the door, according to a witness who saw him drive away.

The woman and the car were found about 9:35 p.m. at La Salle and La Salle Gardens by Officers Raymond Hornbuckle and Don McNeary.

Anyone with information is asked to call Detroit police at 224-4270.

Police shoot man armed with a rifle

A 20-year-old Detroit man was shot by police when he turned on officers with an automatic rifle Wednesday on the city's near west side, police said.

Michael Brown was in temporarily serious condition at Detroit Receiving Hospital after being shot once in the leg shortly after 3 p.m. by Police Officer Thomas Berry. Berry, 34, is a 13-year veteran of the department's commercial auto theft section.

Police said Berry and another officer were in the area of the 3000 block of Williams near Michigan Avenue as a result of an earlier incident in which shots were fired. When the officers saw Brown emerge from a dwelling with a rifle, they identified themselves and Brown ran, police said. He then turned with the rifle in his hands and Berry fired three or four shots, police said.
